The Next Level of Technology

April 6, 2011

In March, 2011, our company sponsored AngioScreens for our employees, which were performed by AngioScreen staff members at our location. Approximately 35 employees (and some spouses) received the screening. The staff arrived on-time in the morning, were quick to get all their equipment and supplies set up, and were ready to begin the screening process at the time we had agreed upon.

The day went very smoothly, and the staff was excellent. They completed all of the tests in a very efficient manner, and provided some very useful feedback to the employees regarding the results of their tests. The individual reports that were provided to the participants were very nicely presented and will be a great tool for the participants to share with their own doctors.

It was a good experience for our employees, and we were very happy with the process and the staff. We would recommend this service to other companies who want to provide an important health screening tool for their employees.
